Laval Warns Mussolini France Would React to Attack on British Fleet

FIGHTS BAN ON OIL

League To Act on Embargo Dec. 12; Likely To Put It in Effect.

By The Associated Press

Authoritative sources in London said Premier Laval of France had warned Italy that an unprovoked attack on Great Britain would be considered an attack against France.

This disclosure came in quick answer to a statement in Rome that Italy was ready to attack the British fleet in the Mediterranean if an international oil embargo is declared against Italy.

Authoritative sources in London said they believed the League of Nations sanctions committee, meeting Dec. 12 in Geneva, would declare an oil embargo to go into effect soon after that date.

Laval's warning, described as a virtual ultimatum, was delivered to Ambassador Vittorio Cerruti of Italy in Paris.

Laval took his action, it was said, after Sir George Russell Clerk, British ambassador, asked the French premier to remind Italy directly that all members of the League of Nations were standing together to resist attacks.

Warning Issued Direct

While this was a reaffirmation of previous arrangements, it is considered most important because of the fact that the warning was direct and official.

High quarters expressed the belief that the League of Nations oil embargo sanction against Italy would go into effect soon after Dec. 12 when the committee of 18 meets in Geneva.

Britain was reported by informed sources to have achieved its long-sought assurance of French support in case of an Italian attack on the British in the Mediterranean.

Laval Agrees to Aid Britain

It was stated that Premier Laval, who previously delayed League of Nations action on the proposal of an oil embargo against Italy, had given in to the British demand for action on the subject, thereby wrecking Italian hopes for further delay.

London officialdom denied Mussolini had warned he would attempt to destroy the British Mediterranean fleet, but in Paris officials reported that Vittorio Cerruti, Italian ambassador, repeated to Premier Pierre Laval yesterday Italy's previous warning that an oil embargo might mean war.

Italy's counter-program, evolved in a desperate attempt to beat the League of Nations sanctions program, was described as having as a core an attack on Britain's Mediterranean naval contingent by an aerial "death squad." A force of 125 pilots, each carrying a single great bomb, would dive on "enemy" warships to certain death.

Predict Stiff Opposition

Those sources predicted stiff resistance, perhaps another world war, should Italy be cut off from needed oil supplies by joint action of the nations subscribing to the league sanctions.

France, ever hopeful of peace, looked on the situation as possibly productive of new efforts to end the conflict.

The French commentator Pertinax said a high Italian authority predicted an oil embargo "would very shortly make continuation of the war impossible."

From the war front in Africa, Reuters (British) News Agency quoted Ethiopian officials in Harar as saying their troops had recaptured Waiwal, close to Italian

YOUNG BANDITS ROB OHIO BANK

Two Youths Take $1,633 in Holdup at Mt. Blanchard, Near Findlay.

ESCAPE TOWARD KENTON

Marion Highway Patrolmen, Sheriff and Deputies Aid in Search.

By The Associated Press

FINDLAY, O., Nov. 29—Two young bare-headed bandits held up the Citizens' bank at Mt. Blanchard, 14 miles southeast, shortly before noon today and escaped with $1,833.

Dean Cunningham, the cashier, Frank Dunbar, assistant cashier, and Walter Foster, a customer, were in the bank when the pair entered.

"They came over to the side of my cage and said they wanted to talk to me," Cunningham said.

"We are after money. This is a stick-up," they told me, and both pulled pistols from their pockets.

"They ordered Dunbar, Foster and myself to lie down on the floor in my cage and then they scooped up the currency. They didn't take any change.

"Before they left, they told us not to move for 15 minutes or else they would shoot us full of holes with machine guns."

Sheriff's deputies and the state highway patrol set out in search of the robbers, described by Cunningham as "amateurs."

Harry and Frank Foster, brothers, heard Cunningham sound an alarm and said they pursued the robbers for three miles toward Kenton. The holdup men escaped in a roadster.

Officers Here Aid in Search

State highway patrolmen from the Marion sub-station and Sheriff Fred F. Miller and his deputies were patroling roads near Marion this afternoon on orders received over the state highway patrol radio facilities following the holdup of the Citizens' bank at Mt. Blanchard.

Those making up the patrol were Patrolmen J. M. Kratzer, Paul Wasson and C. N. Long, and Sheriff Miller and Deputies Gene Geissler and W. H. Willis.

Feminist Fights To Help Women Hold Their Jobs

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29—Women like to eat, just the same as men.

That said one of the country's leading feminists today, is why women want a new amendment to the United States Constitution guaranteeing them equal rights in addition to suffrage.

Mrs. Helen Hunt West, petite but serious vice chairman of the National Women's party congressional committee declared that 1,000 state laws, plus the "marriage clause" in the federal economy act of 1932, deprive women of the right to a livelihood.

"These laws discriminate against women in industry and business," she said. "They throw women out of jobs which they need to feed dependents.

CLIPPER LANDS ON MANILA BAY

Craft 4 Minutes Late Due to Difficulty in Landing Amid Thousands of Boats.

FIRST STAMP CANCELED

Ship's Captain Delivers Letter from Roosevelt to President Quezon.

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Nov. 29—The China Clipper, four minutes late on the first trans-Pacific airmail flight in history, alighted on Manila bay at 3:31 p. m. today (2:31 a. m. Friday, eastern standard time) amid wild acclaim.

The very enthusiasm of thousands who swarmed the bay and waterfront was to blame for the clipper's failure to land exactly on the scheduled minute in completing its 8,000-mile flight from Alameda, Calif.

Sudden appearance of numerous small craft on the bay caused Capt. Edwin C. Musick to proceed cautiously, slower than he planned.

Cheers Fire Stamp

As the welcoming throng cheered, Antonio De Las Alas, secretary of public works and communications, cancelled the stamp on the first trans-Pacific airmail letter to be delivered.

The letter, from President Roosevelt to President Manuel Quezon, was delivered by Capt. Musick personally to Quezon at Malacanan palace.

In a brief response to Manila's official welcome, Capt. Musick said the flight was in no way experimental but demonstrated how close America is to the orient.

President Quezon officially welcomed the crew of the Clipper on behalf of the Philippine commonwealth and invited the eight men to lunch at the palace tomorrow.

Had Fine Weather

Musick informed the president the Clipper enjoyed ideal weather on the 1,700-mile hop from Guam, a stretch never before spanned by an airplane. The last leg of the flight required only 11 hours, 25 minutes.

From a rooftop near the bay, President Quezon and Frank Murphy, United States high commissioner, viewed the landing.

While thousands lining the shore and scores of boats in the harbor set up a terrific din, the 25-ton transport circled the city a dozen times, accompanied by army and navy planes, and then settled down and taxied up to the landing float.

Amid the confusion, a government mail boat was aside the SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Nov. 29—Jesse Livermore Jr., 15, son of the famous Wall Street operator, was probably fatally wounded early today. Undersheriff Jack Ross said Livermore's mother fired the shot.

Ross said both Livermore and his mother had been drinking.

SCIENTIST WILL SPEAK ON SOY BEAN PROGRAM

Head of Ford Motor Co. Research Department Will Be on Program Here.

The opening program of Marion "soy bean days" to be given next Thursday night in The Star auditorium was announced today by W. D. Brown, secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce, who is assisting the committee on arrangements.

The principal speaker will be Dr. Edsel A. Ruddiman of Dearborn, Mich., head of the research department of the Ford Motor Co. The meeting will open at 7:30 p. m. with musical selections by the Harding High school orchestra. Chairman of the program will be John H. Clark, chairman of the soy bean days educational committee and head of the agricultural committee of the Marion Kiwanis club. Mr. Clark will introduce the speaker.

Dr. Ruddiman has spent the last five years in developing by-products from soy beans for manufacturing purposes, and also has spent time developing by-products of food value for human and livestock consumption. Dr. Ruddiman will remain in Marion Thursday night and will be one of two speakers at a program in The Star auditorium Friday morning.

The Ford Motor Co. is now completing the world's largest industrial plant devoted to manufacture of automobile parts from farm crops, according to recent news dispatches from Detroit.

The project is attracting intense interest of scientists and farmers and arousing hopes for a new kind of farm relief. Henry Ford's $5,000,000 soy bean mill at his River Rouge plant is virtually completed and first machine units in the mill, including storage tanks, giant mixers and presses, already are in place turning out test parts. These parts include horn buttons, gear shift lever balls, light switch handles, distributor bases, distributor covers, window trim strips, dashboard panels, oils for paints, soft soaps, and meal to be used as foundry sand.

Soy bean products are to replace use of metal, hard rubber and linseed oil in various Ford processes and cut imports to this country to some extent, the news dispatches said.

Ford has been experimenting with soy beans for some time, although prior to now the experiments had been confined to his "village industries."

In addition to its present tested used as auto parts, the soy bean as a building material is declared to have unlimited possibilities. It has possibilities as flooring, wall paneling and light furniture among other uses.

ENDS TONIGHT—JANE WITHERS IN "THIS IS THE LIFE"

It is the privilege of this theatre to present Will Rogers in his last and greatest picture, "In Old Kentucky."

Diversified as were his interests, he was best known, and most beloved, in motion pictures. This was the medium that brought you his real self... that captured for young and old, rich and poor, the mellow humor of this great American.

Millions, the world over, loved him for his homespun humor and kindliness, the qualities which are so sympathetically caught in this famous play acclaimed for three decades as the favorite of all Americans.

In this glorious romance of hearts, horses, and humor, Will Rogers again reveals that simple, unassuming Americanism that endeared him to you and your neighbors.

We have called "In Old Kentucky" his greatest picture. That is just what it is. You will agree after coming under its spell.

CONSTRUCTION WORK PUSHED

Gas Company at Half Way Mark in Bringing New Line Here.

A crew of approximately 70 workmen are nearing the halfway mark in the $250,000 construction program launched this fall by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. to increase the supply of gas available to Marion residents, company officials revealed today.

The work was begun after the company and city had settled rate controversies and ended the 10-year franchise controversy that began when the plant here was the property of the old Logan Gas Co.

Extensive work has been done to date to give the entire city a greater supply of gas during the winter months by connecting Marion with two high-pressure transmission lines that pass through the southwestern part of the county, P. Bronson, manager of the company's Marion district said.

When this new source of supply is connected with the city system, it will relieve the present source from the east to an extent that will assure every gas user an adequate supply all winter, he said.

The remainder of the construction program will further increase the efficiency of the gas distribution system, enable the company to extend its lines into sections of the city not now served, and to meet the requirements of industrial concerns.

Workmen have completed and tested the transmission line that connects the new supply of gas from the main lines in the southwestern part of the county to the edge of the city, and a pressure regulating station has been built by the company on a lot south of the Sawyer sanatorium. This part of the construction program is complete and ready for service when the distribution lines have been completed and tested.

A 10-inch medium pressure distribution main has been extended from the regulating station to Bellefontaine avenue and also is ready for use. From there, an eight-inch line has been built to connect with present distribution lines in Columbia street.

Work is now progressing on changes in the low pressure distribution system that will make the new supply of gas available to every gas consumer in Marion, Mr. Bronson said. This work will continue as long as weather permits.

Approximately three more months of work will be required to complete the construction program, and most of this probably will have to be carried over until next spring because of weather conditions, he said.

For advertising purposes a cover for spare tires carried on the backs of automobiles has been invented that displays changing words as a car is driven along a road.

U. S. CONCERNED OVER TROOPERS IN CHINA

Japanese Invasion and Seizure Of Railways Causes Washington To Worry.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—A large question mark today shadowed the eventual status of American troops in North China in view of heavy Japanese military concentrations there and the seizure by Nipponese military of control over the railway lines in eastern Hopei province.

Two battalions of the 15th U. S. infantry are stationed at Tientsin, principal northern Chinese port city where recent large Japanese troop movements have taken place ostensibly with the autonomy campaign in that region.

Thus far no incident has occurred to involve the American soldiers in any conflict, either of force or interest.

They participate with military units of other foreign nations in guarding the line of communications between Peiping and the sea.

Unofficially, the impression prevailed here that no matter what complications may arise between the opposing Chinese political factions, the Japanese military, which is supporting the autonomists, will take every precaution to prevent any such incident.

MARX BROS. TURN OUT ANOTHER HIT NOW AT PALACE

For theater patrons who like a picture filled from start to finish with utter nonsense the Palace has on tap the three (count 'em) Mark Brothers with their latest lunacies in "A Night at the Opera."

The flicker opened yesterday so those who dined heartily could laugh off impending indigestion and will continue through Saturday. One of the important things to note about the feature is the absence of the fourth brother, Beppo I believe his name was, who has been excess baggage to the other three since their early stage days.

The casting directors have found a worthy substitute for Beppo, who always took the romantic lead, in Allan Jones, an ordinary looking lad with a swell voice. Jones made his film debut with Jean Harlow in "Reckless." The other songbird in the picture, if we discount Groucho Marx' intentionally funny efforts, is Miss Kitty Carlisle, and Miss Kitty turns in a neat job both in her warbling and in her easy (for her) role of looking like a million.

Remembering the Marx boys' frantic efforts in their last few films to emulate their first terrific success in "Cocoanuts," their current screen fare becomes doubly welcome. It is their best picture since their Hollywood debut. Maybe it's because George S. Kaufman, the talented penman who turned out "Cocoanuts," authored it, or maybe it's because the law of averages is allowing them two outstanding successes in five or six tries—no matter, "A Night at the Opera" runs their best picture a close second.

The rather flimsy story told by "A Night at the Opera" concerns the American debut of an Italian opera cyclist—Kitty Carlisle—who leaves for the land of promise on the same ship with the Marx boys. Groucho, who is assistant managing director or something of the Metropolitan opera Co. by virtue of his attentions to the woman financial backer, has a stateroom on the liner, while Harpo and Chico Marx and Allan Jones sail as stowaways. Jones, of course, is in love with Kitty and is following her to America.

Half of the insanities of the Marx Brothers take place on the ship and the other half are unfolded after she docks. Kitty is tossed out of the opera through the jealousy of the male star, and is replaced, along with Jones, when the antics of the Marx lads threaten to wreck the opening.

The shorts consist of a news reel and a color musical comedy which features a score of film names in bits of rather bright entertainment.—G. H. M.

LINCOLN-ZEPHYR

THE FORD AND LINCOLN TWELVE-CYLINDER VALUE AT MEDIUM PRICE

BORN in the Lincoln tradition, bearing the Lincoln name, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR brings to the medium-price field traditional Ford-Lincoln standards of value. Built in its own specially equipped division of the Lincoln plant, famous for precision workmanship, this new car reflects the combined Ford-Lincoln engineering experience, manufacturing ability and economic resources.

Powered with a 110-horsepower 12-cylinder engine of the V-type, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR provides performance of a high order, combined with unusual economy. The wide, roomy body, on a wheelbase of 122 inches with springbase of 133 inches, has ample room for six passengers and luggage. The spare wheel is carried concealed under the rear deck.

At first glimpse the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR will give you a new concept of beauty. Here a motor car's form is determined logically by a motor car's function. Streamlines flow, uninterrupted, from bow to stern, from side to side; and every line satisfies the eye.

But the beauty of the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR carries a significance larger than any style trend. It reflects new principles of design. Just as trusses of steel make possible the bridge, light in weight but great in strength, steel trusses underlie the curves of this new car. Body and frame are one, welded together.

The great safety provided by this modern construction is enhanced by ease of handling and control. On all types of roads, under all conditions of travel, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR conveys the feeling of safety because of its low center of gravity and correct distribution of weight.

Inherent in the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR, too, is a new rhythm of motoring. Many persons have remarked that the back seat is as comfortable as the front, and that the car rides as gently with one passenger as with six. Soft transverse springs minimize jounces, jolts, bumps—"up-and-down" motions that tire the motorist. With its alert and responsive V-12 cylinder motor, this car glides over all kinds of road surfaces without transmitting their shocks to driver or passengers.

For all its forward-reaching design, the LINCOLN-ZEPHYR contains nothing experimental. It has been tested more rigorously by Lincoln engineers than it could be by owners. Working parts are easy of access. Basic design and details of construction make the new car economical to operate.

Jess and Betty Decide That Madge Wins in Guessing.

Madge Explains Details of Noel's Accident to Doctor.

THERE was an expression on Williams' face as he followed my suggestion and took the big-mouth bass from Roderick's string and told me that he understood and was secretly amused by the children's scheme of cross purposes that Betty Gibbs was playing with Junior and Roderick. But his face was grave as he put the piece of waxed paper I handed him upon the scales and made a note upon it the bass Roderick had caught.

"That a boy, Junior put his hand over the figures. "Let's all guess what this fish weighs. Mum says it's quite a pound and a quarter."

"What did my father say?" Betty reminded.

"That wouldn't be fair," Roderick put in. "He's used to guessing the weight of fish."

"I guess that's right," Betty admitted reluctantly but honestly. "I'll guess a pound," she said, something in her manner must have alerted the boys, for Roderick growled, "You're crazy," and Junior backed his cousin's opinion by judicially observing that his guess would be a "pound and three-eighths."

Weigh the Fish

"That's mine, too," Roderick said weightily, and I saw Williams' lips twitch. When Roderick asked respectfully, "And what do you guess, Mr. Williams?" the reply came with suspicious promptness. "I wouldn't be fair for me to guess, either. I'm used to estimating the weight of fish, too. Shall I weigh him now?"

"Oh, please!" the children chorused and Williams gravely weighed the fish, while Betty and the two boys watched him closely.

"It's over a pound," Roderick said with relief in his voice and a triumphant glance at Betty.

"But it's nearer a pound than it is a pound and three-eighths, as you guessed," Betty retorted. "Isn't it, Mr. Williams?"

"You'll have to figure that out for yourselves," Williams said, his face grave. "I'm not much of a mathematician. But the bass weighs—he paused dramatically—exactly a pound and three ounces."

"That's a pound and three-sixteenths," Betty said at once, with the precociousness in arithmetic which many small girls possess, and which, I have observed, is saddening to their small boy associates.

Williams Settles Question

"Well, what's a pound and three-eighths—what we guessed?" Roderick demanded, and Betty looked suddenly deflated. She raised her head defiantly and shifted her hat with a strategy that would have done credit to a general.

"We all win," she announced. "A pound and three-eighth is a pound and six-sixteenths. I guessed a pound, you guessed a pound and a sixteenth, and the bass weighs a pound and three-sixteenths, just exactly half-way between. We all guessed right."

She looked at her audience with a glance that dared them to question her. Junior and Roderick opened their mouths, I was afraid, to remind her that she had claimed the bass was nearer her guess than that of the boys, but Williams tactfully intervened.

"Did you say not quite a pound and a quarter, Mrs. Graham?" he asked.

"Yes," I answered quickly, playing up to his cue. "Do you mean that I have won this contest?"

"It looks that way," he said. "Miss Betty, how much did you say a pound and a quarter would be in sixteenths?"

Mums Is Praised

"A pound and four-sixteenths," she answered promptly.

Junior gave a whoop of joyous pride.

"Then Mums wins over everybody," he said. "A pound and three-sixteenth is just under a pound and a quarter, and that's what she said it would be. Gee! Mums, you're smart."

Betty eyed me with respectful admiration.

"That was pretty near," she said. "As near as my father gets most of the time. Although sometimes," she added, beginning to lessen herself again, "he guesses it exactly. But are you going to clean the fish now?" She turned to me. "May we help, or watch?"

"Wouldn't you rather play some games?" I said. "I brought some along for the boys. You'll find them on a table in the other room. But be careful not to waken the baby."

She did credit to her mother's training without even a demurring look.

"Come on!" she said to the boys, leading the way to the other room. "We'll only be in the way here. What games have you got?"

WILLIAMS and I smiled broadly at each other as Betty Gibbs led Junior and Roderick into the other room in response to my suggestion that they play games while we cleaned the fish. In those smiles was the mirth which we had bravely suppressed while the children carried on their absurd controversy concerning the weight of the fish.

"That little Miss Betty is a card," Williams commented, "as smart as they make 'em."

"I think she'll keep the boys from being dull," I replied, as, donning an apron, I hurried into the interesting, if messy, occupation of scaling fish and preparing them for the frying pan.

"If they don't kill her," he said dryly, and neither of us spoke again until over half the fish in the creels were cleaned.

Old-fashioned Cook

"I can finish these easily, if you want to begin frying," he said. "There are only two pans. We can't fry them all at once, anyway."

"That's a very good idea," I told him. "I'll start at once."

I took the cleaned fish to the table and put aside, as out of my reach, the stereotyped coverings of corn meal, beaten egg, bread crumbs and cracker crumbs. These were either not at hand or took more time to prepare than was mine, if I considered the hunger of my family.

"I see you cook them the old-fashioned way," Williams said, as I turned away from the stove and took a fresh batch of fish from him. There was distinct approval in his voice, and I realized the reason for it a second later when he added softly:

Doctor Arrives

"My mother used to cook them like that when I was a boy and came in from fishing," he said. "I never thought I'd taste them like that again."

"I hope that you will like them," I said heartily.

"I shall, never fear," he replied, appreciatively sniffing the odor from the frying pans. "There's a car just drawn up outside."

"Probably the doctor," I said, adding, as I looked doubtfully at the frying fish: "I suppose I ought to go over."

"I can watch the fish while I'm cleaning the rest of these," he said promptly. "I used to do it for my mother. I know when to turn them."

I shot a keen, amused glance at him.

"You used to do more than turn them, I'll warrant," I said. "If I'm detained, will you please go on with this job until the boat comes in and you're needed to help with the stretcher?"

"Of course," he said quickly, and, taking off my apron, I went out of the door and across to the other cottage where Mrs. Gibbs was cordially welcoming a man in his late thirties, of average height, whose stocky figure, with no suggestion of excess flesh, was surmounted by one of the most dependable faces I ever have seen.

Kindness radiated from that face as well as trustworthiness, knowledge and power. There flashed into my mind a mental comment I had made when years ago I had first seen Katherine Sennot, know Kathrine Bickett, in a sick room, and I repeated it to myself, fitting it to the man Mrs. Gibbs was introducing to me:

"One could lay the life of one's nearest and dearest in those capable hands and not be afraid."

"Mrs. Graham can tell you all about this, Dr. Rickey," Mrs. Gibbs was saying. "She was in the boat with Bob when they found the man who is hurt."

Everything in Readiness

"Please sit down," Dr. Rickey said with grave courtesy, drawing forward a chair. As I obeyed his suggestion, I told myself that never had I seen a man who more perfectly fulfilled my ideal of what a physician should be.

"Now, if you don't mind, I should like to hear all that you know about this," he said. "As you see, everything is in readiness for the treatment and reception of the patient. I could not have better facilities for working if I were in the hospital."

I agreed with him as I followed his glance to the bed made up in hospital fashion, to the table, bearing necessaries for emergency treatment, and to the kitchen stove in the room beyond on which a kettle of boiling water was sending out steam.

Then I told him briefly what I knew about Noel's accident. He listened attentively, but I never knew what comment he opened his lips to make upon it, for I had barely finished speaking when Nell Bibbs, who had been standing at the window, said tensely: "They're coming in. I can see Bob's lantern."

ORDERS KEEP FIRM BUSY AT KENTON

By The Associated Press

KENTON, Nov. 29—With the receipt of a second large order this week, executives of the Champion Equipment Co., today declared that they have prospects that will keep 100 men busy at the Kenton factory throughout the winter months.

The company will construct crest gates, super-structures, hoisting equipment and special water-control apparatus for the Central Avenue dam of Rochester, N. Y., across the Genesee river, Francis Davies, executive vice president, asserted. Earlier in the week they received a $69,457 contract for equipment of a hydro-electric plant at Spokane, Wash., and at present a force of men is busy on an order for gates and hoisting equipment at Turlock, Calif. Recently the Kenton factory completed its contracts for equipment of dams in the Muskingum conservancy project.

GIRL FORGIVES GABLE FOR NOT RECALLING

Tells of Happy Hours Under Tropic Moon on Way to U. S. from Rio.

(Picture on Page 24)

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK Nov 29 — Pretty Della Carroll, New York showgirl with starry eyes and platinum blond curls, is willing to forgive Clark Gable for saying he didn't remember spending any happy hours with her beneath the spell of a tropic moon

"I was sort of hurt for a moment, but I'm not mad" she said, when she heard that Gable had asserted he couldn't even remember her name

"Well," she philosophized today, 'maybe he didn't want the publicity. I don't blame him If I ever see him in Hollywood, I'll tell him so"

Nevertheless, Miss Carroll insisted it was none other than Gable with whom she spent "the most marvelous two weeks of my life," when they were on the liner Pan America a month ago

Furthermore, the little dancer produced photographs showing her clinging to Gable's arm She was wearing a bathing suit and the movie star was clad in trunks

"He seemed willing enough to have them taken," she said 'I didn't coax him"

"He is the divinest man I ever met," the little actress had previously said "A girl's dream, a divine dancer, a marvelous lover ——" At that, however, she had hastened to explain she meant only holding hands in the starlight.

As for Gable's assertion that "I can't remember any one by that name," Miss Carroll retorted:

"Of course he knew my name The ship's purser introduced us Clark called me Della at first, and afterward he called me 'Irish'"

TEXT OF ROOSEVELT'S GEORGIA TALK

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 29—The text of the address delivered here today by President Roosevelt at the Georgia homecoming celebration follows:

I am happy to be in Georgia I am proud of Georgia. Happy because of this moving reception which my friends, the senators and representatives in the congress from this state have tendered me, and which you, the good people of this state have responded to with such warmth and hospitality. Happy because I meet again so many old friends and neighbors Proud because I see signs on every hand that the overwhelming majority of the people of this state are keeping pace with the millions of others throughout the nation who believe in progress, are willing to work for progress and are going to get progress. Proud because I see clear signs of a revival of material prosperity in country and in city, and especially because I sense a swelling prosperity of the spirit that spells a greater help and a deeper happiness for our fellowmen

Came 11 Years Ago

Eleven years ago I came to live at Warm Springs for the first time That was a period of great so called prosperity But I would not go back to the conditions of 1924, and I do not believe that you people would want to go back either Of that year and of the five years that followed, I have a clear recollection which you can verify for yourselves In that orgy of "prosperity" a wild speculation was building speculative profits for the speculators and preparing the way for the public to be left "holding the bag" In that orgy of "prosperity" banks, individually and by chains, were closing their doors at the expense of the depositors In that orgy of "prosperity" the farmers of the south had become involuntary speculators

Themselves, never certain when they planted their cotton whether it would bring 25 cents or 15 cents or 5 cents In that orgy of "prosperity" the poorest vied with the richest in throwing their earnings and their savings into a cauldron of land and stock speculation In that orgy of "prosperity" slum conditions went unheeded, better education was forgotten, usurious interest charges mounted, child labor continued, starvation wages were too often the rule instead of the exception. Mammon ruled America.

Labeled "Fools Paradise"

Those are the years to remember —those fool's paradise years before the crash came. Too much do we harp on the years that followed, when from 1929 to 1933 this nation slipped spirally downward—ever downward—to the inevitable point when the mechanics or civilization came to a dead stop on March 3, 1933

You and I need not rehearse the four years of disaster and gloom. We know the simple fact that at the end of those years America acted before it was too late, that we turned about and by a supreme, well-nigh unanimous national effort started on the upward path again

I have reason to remember the past two and a half years that have gone by so quickly, reason to remember the fine spirit of the average of American citizenship which made my 'task lighter. Memory is short but yours is not too short to recollect those great meetings of the representatives of the farmers, regionally and in Washington, in the spring and summer of 1933, when they agreed overwhelmingly that unfair low prices for farm crops could never be raised to and maintained at a reasonable level until and unless the government of the United States acted to help them to reduce the tremendous carry-overs and surpluses which threatened us and the whole world.

Recalls Plea for Help

You and I can well remember the overwhelming demand that the national government come to the rescue of the home-owners and the farm owners of the nation who were losing the roofs over their heads through inflated valuation and exorbitant rates of interest.

You and I still recollect the need for and the successful attainment of a banking policy which not only opened the closed banks but guaranteed the deposits of the depositors of the nation.

You and I have not forgotten the enthusiastic support that succeeded and still in part succeeds, in ending the labor of children in mills and factories, in seeking a fairer wage level for those on starvation pay and in giving to the workers hope for the right collectively to bargain with their employers.

You and I will not forget the long struggle to put an end to the indiscriminate distribution of "fly-by-night" securities, and to provide fair regulation of the stock exchanges and of the great interstate public utility companies of our country.

You and I—yes, every individual and every family in the land—are being brought close to that supreme achievement of the present congress The social security law which, in days to come, will provide the aged against distressing want, will set up a national system of insurance for the unemployed and will extend well-merited care to sick and crippled children.

Labels Drive a Crusade

You and I are enlisted today in a great crusade in every part of the land to cooperate with nature and not to fight her, to stop destructive floods, to prevent dust storms and the washing away of our precious soils, to grow trees, to give thousands of farm families a chance to live, and to seek to provide more and better food for the city dwellers of the nation.

In this connection it is, I think, of interest to point out that national surveys prove that the average of our citizenship lives today on what would be called by the medical fraternity a third class diet If the country lived on a second class diet, we would need to put many more acres than we use today back into the production of food stuffs for domestic consumption If the nation lived on a first class diet, we would have to put more acres than we have ever cultivated into the production of an additional supply of things for American to eat.

Why, speaking in broad terms in following up this particular illustration are we living on a third class diet? For the very simple reason that the masses of the American people have not got the purchasing power to eat more and better food

Cites Price Increases

I mentioned a few weeks ago that farm incomes in the United States have risen since 1932 a total of nearly three billions That is because wheat is selling at better than 90 cents instead of 32 cents; corn at 50 cents instead of 12 cents, cotton at 12 cents instead of at 4½ cents, and other crops in proportion I wonder what cotton would be selling at today if during these past three years we had continued to produce fifteen or sixteen or seventeen million bales each year, adding to our own surplus, adding to the world surplus, and driving the cotton farmers of the south into bankruptcy and starvation The additional three billions of farm income has meant the rebirth of city business, the reopening of closed factories, the doubling of automobile production, the improvement of transportation and the giving of new employment to millions of people

That brings us squarely face to face with the fact of the continued unemployment of many million persons of whom approximately three and a half million are employables in need of relief When some of the people of a great and wealthy country are suffering from starvation an honest government has no choice At first, realizing that we were not doing a perfect thing but that were doing a necessary saving and human thing, we appropriated money for direct relief. That was necessary to ward off actual starvation But as quickly as possible we turned to the job of providing actual work for those in need

Admits Many Complain

I can realize that gentlemen in well-warmed and well-stocked clubs will discourse on the expenses of government and the suffering that they are going through because the government is spending money for work relief I wish I could take some of these men out on the battle line of human necessity and show them the facts that we in the government are facing. If these more fortunate Americans will come with me, I will not only show them the necessity for the expenditures of this government, but I will show them, as well, the definite and beneficial results we have attained with the dollars we have spent Some of these gentlemen tell me that a dole would be more economical than work relief That is true But the men who tell me that have, unfortunately, to little contact with the true America to realize that in this business of relief we are dealing with properly self respecting Americans to whom a mere dole outrages every instinct of individual independence

Most Americans want to give something for what they get That something in this case honest work, is the saving barrier between them and moral disintegration We propose to build that barrier high.

Into the ears of many of you have been dinned the cry that your government is piling up an unconscionable and backbreaking debt. Let me tell you a simple story: In the spring of 1933 many of the great bankers of the United States flocked to Washington They were there to get help of their government in the saving of their banks from insolvency. To them I pointed out, in all fairness, the simple fact that the government would be compelled to go heavily into debt for a few years to come, in order to save banks and insurance companies and mortgage companies, and railroads, and to take care of millions of people who were on the verge of starvation Every one of these gentlemen expressed to me the firm conviction that it was all well worth the price and that they heartily approved

Asked for Maximum

In order to get their further judgment, however, I asked them what they thought the maximum national debt of the United States government could rise to without serious danger to the national credit. Their answers, remembering this was in the spring of 1933, were that the country, could safely stand a national debt of between 55 and 70 billion dollars I told them that a rise in the national debt to any such figure was, in my judgment, wholly unnecessary, and that even if they, the bankers, were willing I could not and would not go along with them. I told them then that only a moderate increase in the debt for the next few years seemed likely and justified That objective holds good today; but remember that at that time many bankers and big business men would have been willing to put the country far deeper into debt than I shall ever let it go

If the bankers thought the country could stand a debt of 55 to 70 billion dollars in 1933, with values as they were then, I wonder what they would say the country could stand today, in the light of an enormous increase of values of property of all kinds all along the line since 1933

Wants Sound Future

Your government says to you "You cannot borrow your way out of debt, but you can invest your way into a sounder future"

As a matter of actual fact, of course, the gross national debt under the last administration rose from a little over 17 billions to 21 billions The day I came into office I found that the national treasury contained only $158,000,000 or at the rate of previously authorized expenditures, enough to last the treasury less than a month Since March 4, 1933, the national debt has risen from 21 billions to 29¼ billions, but it must also be remembered that today:, included in this figure is nearly 1¼ billions of working balance in the treasury and nearly 4½ billion dollars of recoverable assets which the government will get back over a period of years, and which will be used for the retirement of debt.

Last April I started what I have held to consistently ever since—that it was the hope of the administration that by some time in November of this year we would substantially end the dole and offer in place of it employment to by far the greater part of the three and a half million employable persons we estimated to be on the relief rolls in the United States.

Says Many Were Pessimistic

Week after week since then some individuals and some groups careless of the truth and regardless of scruple, have sought to make the American people believe that this program was a hopeless failure and that it could not possibly succeed

Today is the twenty-ninth day of November. It gives me a certain satisfaction to be able to inform you, and through you the nation, that on Wednesday, two days ago, there were three million one hundred and twenty-five thousand people at work on various useful projects throughout the nation. The small remaining number have received orders to report to work on projects already under way or ready to be started This result I believe you will agree with me, constitutes a substantial and successful national achievement.

Aside from the tremendous increase in morale through substituting work for a dole, there is the practical side of permanent material benefit. Within sight of us today stands a tribute to useful work under government supervision—the first slum clearance and low rent housing project.

Here, at the request of the citizens of Atlanta, we have cleaned out nine square blocks of antiquated, squalled dwellings, for years a detriment to this community. Today those hopeless old houses are gone and in their place we see the bright, cheerful buildings of the Techwood housing project Within a very short time, people who never before could get a decent roof over their heads will live here in reasonable comfort and healthful, worthwhile surroundings, others will find similar homes in Atlanta's second slum clearance, the University project; and still others will find similar opportunity in nearly all of the older, overcrowded cities of the United States.

Points To New Roads

I take it that it has been equally worthwhile to the nation to give jobs to the unemployed in the construction of a vast network of highways, including thousands of miles of farm to market roads, in repairing great numbers of schools and building hundreds of new ones in city and country, in helping cities to put in sewers and sewage disposal plants and waterworks, in constructing cold storage warehouses and county recreational buildings, in creating aviation fields; in giving a million boys a chance to go to CCC camps and to work on forestry and on soil erosion prevention; in controlling malaria; in pushing health projects, in putting white collar workers into jobs of permanent useful ness to their communities, and in giving youth an opportunity for better education.

As things stand today, and in the light of a definite and continuing economic improvement, we have passed the peak of appropriations; revenues without the imposition of new taxes are increasing, and we can look forward with assurance to a decreasing deficit The credit of the government is today higher than that of any other nation in the world, in spite of attacks on that credit made by those few individuals and organizations which seek to dictate to the administration and to the congress how to run the national treasury and how to let the needy starve.

In Red In 1933

In the spring of 1933 our national balance sheet, the wealth versus the debts of the American public, showed that we were in the red Today, less than three years later, it is a fact that the total of all the debts in the United States is lower than it was then. Whereas on the other side of the picture, you and I know that the values of property of all kinds—farms, houses, automobiles, securities—and every other kind of property, have increased so greatly since 1933 that today we are once more in the black. We were insolvent. Today we are solvent.

In this fact most of us find a deep satisfaction But recovery means something more than getting the country back into the black You and I do not want just to go back to the past. We want to face the future in the belief that human beings can enjoy more of the good things of life, under better conditions, than human beings ever enjoyed in the past. American life has improved in these two years and a half, and if I have anything to do with it, it is going to improve more in the days to come The word "progress" is a better word than "recovery," for it means not only a sound business and a sound agriculture from the material point of view, but it means, with equal importance, a sound improvement in American life as a result of continuing and forceful effort on the part of our people and, through them, on the part of their government. I am certain that that is your purpose; and that is why I continue my confidence, my faith, in the people of America.

FARLEY CLAIMS 18 STATES IN FOLD

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Democratic hopes of victory in the 1936 presidential election were bolstered today by a claim of Postmaster General James A Farley that 18 states already are definitely in President Roosevelt's column

Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee expressed his views after a swing around the country which he described as "a quest for trouble." The 18 states he named as certain to go for Roosevelt are Pennsylvania, Ohio, California, Delaware, Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Utah, Nevada, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Colorado and Indiana.

Davey Requests the Refunding of Repair Notes

Asks Legislature To Defer Payment of $750,000 for Two More Years.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov 29 — Gov Davey asked the legislature in a special message today to provide for refunding of the $750,000 in notes issued by the state to finance repairs to the state office building after the explosion four years ago.

The notes, issued three years ago, are due Dec 1 The governor recommended that they be refunded for two more years instead of paid on the due date He asserted the treasury balance should be preserved for possible future emergencies.

The legislature set aside $750,000 in the biennial budget to pay the notes, but the governor vetoed the item and said the debt should be refunded Attaches of the executive office said, that while the present obligations carry 2½ per cent interest, the refunding notes probably could be sold at an interest rate of less than ¾ of one per cent.

The governor gave these three reasons for refunding the notes.

"First, it is my judgment that the balance in the state treasury should be kept intact to meet emergencies that may arise in the next two years.

"Second, the improvement in general business will bring with it a natural increase in state revenues so that it should be easier and safer to pay the indebtedness two years hence.

"Third, the credit of the state is so good that the indebtedness can be refunded at a very low rate of interest. Competent authorities indicate a surprisingly low interest on such prime security"

COUNTY MOVES TO TAKE OVER RELIEF

night to feed 50,000 destitute unemployed, The Associated Press reported.

When federal aid is withdrawn Dec 1, 17 counties will be without means to handle their relief situation Other counties, through proceeds from Carey act utility excise tax bonds, will be able to handle local relief needs, at least for a short time

Bills in preparation contemplate appropriations from the general revenue fund to furnish relief until permanent plans are worked out.

Lieut Gov. Harold G Mosier has prepared a measure to create a state relief commission of five members to allocate these state funds to counties on the basis of need County relief commissions would handle the expenditure of funds locally

Counties receiving state aid would have their allotments set off against their share of the utility excise tax In many of these 17 counties voters rejected relief bond issues, and in others no bond issues were attempted

The Mosier plan, however, may meet the opposition of Gov. Davey He has urged that counties handle relief needs locally. The governor's suggested liberalization of present state laws authorizing bond issues has not been acted upon by the legislature County relief officials contend the governor's plan will be of little or no help

Among counties facing grave relief problems is Lucas, where approximately 17 000 persons must be fed. The county has not a cent available for the purpose.

Other counties requiring assistance and the estimated number to be cared for are. Allen, 5,000, Trumbull, 4,600, Columbiana, 3,500, Jefferson, 2 800; Hancock, 2,400, Ashtabula, 1,800, Wood, 1,600, Perry, Lake and Adams, 1,400 each; Highland, 1,300; Clermont, 1,000; Vinton and Ottawa, 800 each, Shelby 634, and Morrow, 365 and fired. The bullet entered the boy's chest. His condition is critical and it is doubtful if he will recover"

The mother was the divorced wife of Livermore, having married him in 1917 They were divorced in 1932 She later married J. Walter Longcope and was divorced from him last year. She was the former Miss Dorothy Wendt of Brooklyn.

The youth is being attended by Dr Neville Ussher and Dr Irving Wills. Fears were felt that the single bullet he received may have penertated his liver.

The boy's brother, Paul, 12, was in a guest cottage at the estate at the time of the shooting.

The boy's father is one of the most famous figures in American finance, credited with having made and lost several fortunes.

At the age of 25 he entered Wall Street shortly after the turn of the century, and played a prominent role in the copper boom of 1905 He was reported to have emerged from the 1907 panic with $3,000,000

Steel and wheat drew his interest in the ensuing years, and shortly before 1920 he was credited with having taken $10 000 000 from the Chicago wheat pit as the result of his brilliant maneuvers.

Although noted for his ability to switch from the "bull" to the 'bear side of the market in the ebb and flow of finance, Livermore was reported to have been hard hit in the 1929 collapse of stock prices

Since then little has been heard of him save for two days in December, 1933, when he mysteriously dropped from sight after leaving his Park avenue, New York, apartment for the offices of his broker He returned safely home the next day, after fears that he had been kidnaped had been raised.

Livermore has been married three times

He pointed to a vast slum clearance project within sight of the oval stadium of Georgia Tech as one of the "useful" government undertakings and referred to the numerous road and school building constructions and to the civilian conservation corps among the many federal undertakings in making jobs "

Stating the country was again "in the black" on the ledger sheet, Mr Roosevelt said this was true because in the last three years the total of all debts in the United States had become lower and the values of property higher to the extent that the latter had the margin.

"American life has improved in these two years and a half," he concluded, "and if I have anything to do with it, it is going to improve more in the days to come"

Silent On Talmadge

He did not mention Gov. Talmadge of Georgia, administration critic, in his prepared address. He did discuss briefly the agriculture policies which have been particular targets of Talmadge.

Referring to increases in wheat from 32 to 90 cents a bushel in the last three years and of cotton from 4½ cents to 12 cents a pound, he continued'

"I wonder what cotton would be selling at today if during these past three years we had continued to produce fifteen or sixteen or seventeen million bales each year, adding to our own surplus, adding to the world surplus, and driving the cotton farmers of the south into bankruptcy and starvation?"

ARMS MAKERS MUST REGISTER WITH BOARD

Importers and Exporters Included in Clause of Neutrality Law.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Nov 29— manufacturers, importers and exporters of arms and ammunition were required today to be registered with the national munitions control board.

This requirement became effective under an executive order issued Sept. 25 by President Roosevelt who acted in conformance with the American neutrality law.

This act also caused the President to place a flat embargo on shipments of arms to Italy and Ethiopia when they opened hostilities in east Africa.

Besides this the President and Secretary Hull are attempting to discourage the export of other goods necessary in prosecuting war.

Under the law the munitions control board was required to

1—Register before Nov 30 manufacturers, exporters and importers of arms and ammunition in the country

2—Require licenses before a consignment can be shipped to foreign nations.

3—Define "arms, munitions and implements of war"

4—Make available to President Roosevelt all data useful in proclaiming arms embargoes

5—Give congress an annual report on munitions manufacturers and exports

LAVAL WINS VICTORY AGAINST LEFT WING

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Nov. 29—The prospects for Premier Laval's cabinet to carry out its economy fight against devaluation brightened distinctly today after the premier came out through the left-wing opposition's first attack in the chamber of deputies.

The government won a 345 to 237 vote of confidence soon after the chamber reconvened yesterday, following a five-months recess, for Laval's demand that debate on financial policy be given priority over political controversies

While the government's fate remained in doubt until the final vote of Laval's decree laws and the leftist fight on "Fascist leagues" could be settled, these difficulties were described in chamber lobbies as less ominous now.

Devaluation of the franc which Laval's ministers have pledged themselves to oppose came up for debate today on the economy decree laws and a balanced budget

...RDIN COUNTY GETS ...ELIEF SETUP RULING

...mission Holds Local Unit Leader Not Necessary After Dec. 1.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Nov. 29—Township ...ustees today received a ruling ...om the Ohio relief commission ...at the county need not have a ...al executive for dis...ution and aid relief after the ...operation of direct relief ...ederal government discontinues ...ork program, Dec. 1. ...e phase of its program, Dec. 1. The ruling sets forth that, to participate in distribution of federal commodities, the county must rent an office and commodity storeroom, and employ not more than two case workers or investigators. A county commodity administrator will be employed and paid by state relief headquarters. However, there need be no connection between direct relief and the distribution of federal commodities.

Heretofore the board of Hardin county commissioners had maintained that the county relief unit with a relief director was necessary if the district was to receive federal commodities now valued at $6,000 monthly.

The ruling paved the way for anticipated action of the local board of commissioners in turning the direct relief program back to townships and alloting each district its portion of the $33,000 relief bond issue recently authorized. Each subdistrict now must submit a budget of anticipated relief needs for the period Dec. 1, 1935 to Dec. 31, 1936.

Doan-Richards Ceremony Read at Reformed Church

MISS LEAH B. DOAN, daughter of H. D. Doan of 159 Windsor street, became the bride of Paul R. Richards, son of Mrs. Ella Richards of Wilson avenue, in a quiet ceremony read Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock at the First Reformed church. The single ring service was read by the pastor, Rev. John W. Heistand.

The bride's attendant was Miss Ruth Martin, and Mr. Richard's best man was Gail Doan, brother of the bride.

Miss Doan wore for her wedding a two-piece crepe frock in a French blue shade. The bodice was fashioned of silver embroidered net in a jacket effect and had large puff sleeves. Her hat was of silver metallic cloth with a short veil, and her flowers were bride's roses and silver foliage arranged in a shoulder bouquet. The maid of honor was costumed in a frock of rust colored crepe with brown accessories. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of yellow pompons and Talisman roses. The bridegroom's mother was in black and her flowers were a shoulder corsage of white carnations.

Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Frank Garver of DeGraff. Guests included members of the bridal party, Mrs. Richards, Mr. Doan, and C. E. Doan, uncle of the bride. Later Mr. and Mrs. Richards left on a wedding trip to Cincinnati. Upon their return they will make their home with the bride's father for the present.

Mrs. Richards was graduated from Harding High school in 1927 and attended the Marion Business college. She is employed as a stenographer by the law firm of Harder & Mickley. Mr. Richards attended Harding High school and is employed at the Susquehanna Silk Mills.

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY—SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Lose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diets or Back-Breaking, Bending and Reducing Exercises.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right.

All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way.

Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So why not lose fat the easy way—without starvation diets or back-breaking, bending and rolling exercises? Start the Marmola treatment today that millions have used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmola today from druggists.

Warm Springs, 1935.

President Roosevelt's Thanksgiving interlude at Warm Springs, Ga., is repetition of an identical interlude one year ago. On that occasion, also, Mr. Roosevelt was known to be working on the federal budget.

The atmosphere of Warm Springs is different in 1935, however. Principally, it has been cleared, temporarily at least, of the influence of certain men, including Rexford G. Tugwell, who left an indelible mark on the budget Mr. Roosevelt was preparing a year ago.

That was a spenders' budget. The $4,000,000,000 work relief item was its principal characteristic. Significantly, it is agreed generally in 1935 that there must be no repetition of such folly. That is, it is generally agreed outside the administration that the $4,000,000,000 appropriation was an error.

Opinion within the administration is indeterminate. President Roosevelt, apparently, is desirous of giving an impression that he is interested in economy in 1935. However, in view of his record, in view of the theories of his advisers and in view of the fact that economy is always good bait for votes, the President's real intention remains problematical. The country wants to believe he is interested sincerely in repudiating the Tugwell-Hopkins spending crowd, but the record is disturbing. Warm Springs in 1936, if Mr. Roosevelt is reelected, will prove whether or not the current hints of devotion to careful spending are misleading or accurate.

Best Laid Plans.

Sanctions, as everybody must know by this time, are supposed to discourage governments from making war. They are not punitive, but precautionary, in theory.

Actually, they are punitive, or at least that's the way Italians are thinking of them in the present instance. Furthermore, instead of discouraging Premier Mussolini frm making war, they are having an exactly opposite effect.

Il Duce, realizing that eventually sanctions will strangle the life out of Italy, has been forced by them to do what he intends to do in Ethiopia before his country begins to suffer acutely from economic exhaustion. Thus, instead of making war more remote, sanctions have made war more immediate. Italy is bending every fiber of its national being to complete its colonial program before sanctions deplete its resources. Premier Mussolini hasn't the slightest intention of abandoning the invasion of Ethiopia now; he merely is trying to hasten the campaign.

Whatever may have been the plans of the statesmen who drew up the League of Nations covenant, it seems unlikely they intended to increase the efficiency of war by imposing sanctions against an aggressor nation.

"More" Is the Word.

In vain does the taxpayer scan Columbus news for admissions that the report of the Inter-Organization Conference on Ohio's Fiscal Situation was right when it concluded no new taxes would be needed for 1936. The conference stands resolutely over the money bags, but everywhere else on the ship of state the cry is "More." The reason is simple.

In the first place, more money is needed. In the second place, more taxes are needed to provide more money. In the third place, of course, more money is needed to pay more taxes, but that rarely bothers taxmakers. It isn't their job to find money to pay taxes, but to find taxes which will pay the money.

The Inter-Organization Conference on Ohio's Fiscal Situation, whose report that no new taxes are needed in 1936, has received wide and favorable attention, assumes that the state's income for the year will be approximately $85,000,000. That general assumption embodies certain disputable estimates, such as $55,000,000 return from the sales tax in 1935, $8,000,000 from Carey act poor-relief bonds and $6,000,000 profit from the liquor monopoly. The assumption includes, also, a $3,000,000 saving in the cost of government in accordance with recommendations of the Ohio Government Survey (the Sherrill committee). All these estimates have been challenged.

Here is the difficulty of budget making. It is necessary to make estimates and to make assumptions. Both are open to challenge. The easiest thing in the world is to argue that any attempt to sail close to the shore on expenditures is going to lead to disaster. The prediction is always half right, because close sailing requires careful navigating, and it's more fun to have plenty of leeway. That explains, after a fashion, why legislators always want more money and why jobholders always can spend more money. The Inter-Organization Conference on Ohio's Fiscal Situation, judging by the clamor it is causing in Columbus, is going to its Waterloo, but all will not be lost even if the worst happens. The enemy is bound to sustain some casualties, too. The state at least has been provided a means of checking on the professional budget makers.

Oil.

Without oil, there could not be a machine age. It is an indispensable substance. Oil has become, therefore, the most vital factor in the movement of mechanized armies and navies.

Many of Italy's ships transporting soldiers to and from Eritrea burn oil. Italian trucks, tanks and airplanes must have gasoline. An oil embargo literally would paralyze Italy's military arm, once the government's supply was exhausted.

Two nations control most of the world's oil, the United States and Great Britain. This country is a producer of oil. Great Britain, by virtue of its navy, is a controller of oil. If they were to agree to prohibit export of oil to Italy and if they could persuade Russia, also a producer to cooperate with them, Italy could be deprived of the substance which puts life into its machines.

The United States, which is considering a drastic step to bar exports of oil to Italy because oil really is an implement of war, is made acutely aware once more of the difficulty of neutrality. Ethiopia does not depend on oil; Italy does. To cut off supplies of oil to both counties would mean that only Italy would suffer.

Great Britain and other members of the League of Nations are being made aware at the same time that Premier Mussolini might consider an oil blockade the last unpardonable provocation to war. On the brink of a decision to cut off Italy's supply of oil, the great powers are hesitating. The world suddenly has awakened with a shock to the almost unbelievable importance of oil. It has replaced gold as the prime factor of warfare. Gold, unless it can be used to buy oil, is next to useless in the machine age.

Golden Fetters.

Lij Yassu can thank Benito Mussolini, dictator of Italy, for the attention his death causes in a world which wouldn't have noticed him, otherwise. Perhaps Il Duce is the indirect cause of Lij Yassu's death, but it's not likely anyone ever will know.

Lij Yassu had the misfortune to be placed on the throne of Ethiopia before he was old enough to keep his balance. A series of personal and political misfortunes caused him to tumble from his position into the hands of unfriendly opponents.

The story goes that instead of killing him they imprisoned him. He is said to have been bound to a priestly guard by a golden chain, which symbolized the nature of his captivity. He was indulged in all his appetites, except his longing for freedom.

It is a pretty legend, admirably suited to the Ethiopian mind, which runs strongly to romance. Aside from being pretty, it probably was Grade A political applesauce, because Lij Yassu, who was displaced by Emperor Haile Selassie in 1930, still was potentially a powerful political factor.

His political importance increased suddenly when Italy began to invade Ethiopia. Obviously, he would have made an excellent puppet king, in case anything happened to Haile Selassie. But, according to reports, Lij Yassu is dead. That, it would seem, would have to be called a death of convenience—of suspicious convenience, in fact.

A New York university professor went to jail in preference to paying alimony. In that case both the missus and the taxpayers lose.

Some couples of matrimonial experience are likely to assert that the Philadelphia minister who listed 18 causes for failure of modern marriages must have intended the 18 for just the first installment.

Although a word may be sufficient for the wise the whole record of experience is likely to be wasted on a know-it-all.

New Year's day will soon be here to remind us that old Father Time is still the speed champion, regardless of age.

RELIGIOUS PIONEERS

One of the first religious groups to be organized in Marion county was the Marion County Bible society, formed in 1830, an auxiliary to the American Bible society, then only 15 years old. There were few churches in the county at that date and in 1836, when the society was reorganized, only a few of the churches now found in the county had been organized.

The first meeting was called in February, 1830, when settlers were scattered and poor. Roads also were poor, and it sometimes required three hours for a man on horseback to go from Big Island to Marion. Yet to this meeting came Henry Ustick from Mt. Gilead, Joseph Boyd and Shubael W. Knapp from Pleasant, John McElvy from Concranton, (now Mecker) and several Browns from Canaan. At a meeting held in 1874 at the log cabin residence of John Wildbahn in Marion he was the only charter member living in the county.

Frank Craven is a sterling actor practically reared in one of those brass-bossed trunks labeled "Theater." But he left the stage flat a few years ago for the rose-bowered serenity of Hollywood. He was through, boys, he was through! What had Broadway to compare to the spacious lawn, sensibly houred breakfasts in a sunny patio, a kennel of affectionate dogs, an early swing of the golf course under a golden-wooled sky and bed at a reasonable hour? That was the substance of his gurgle to visiting friends. Yet like the bad penny he's back in the three-fold capacity of directing, dramatizing and acting on the Rialto once more. And as happy as a lark.

On the other hand Oom Paul Kruger, almost constant pipe smoker, could detect scents long before the most capable hunters. Oscar, the Waldorf chef, did not smoke until he was 60 because he thought it might have some effect on his palate. After he acquired the habit he noted little change.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, Nov. 29, 1925.

Farewell services for Dr. Jesse Swank were held at Epworth M. E. church, where he had served as pastor 11 years. He had been appointed superintendent of the Dayton district, West Ohio conference. The church was thronged throughout the day, more than 1,400 attending Sunday school. In the morning service, Dr. and Mrs. Swank were presented with a new automobile by members of the congregation and friends outside the church.

Special homecoming services were held at the First Reformed church in celebration of its eighty-second anniversary. The services also marked the close of a successful building fund campaign held under the direction of Asa C. Queen.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Axe and family of Summit street and Mrs. M. Goss returned from Dayton where they attended the wedding of Mr. Axe's brother, Eugene, to Miss Alice Kahleher.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, Nov. 29, 1915.

A dispatch from Rome reported that Austria was trying to conclude a separate peace with Italy. From London came the report that after a 51-day campaign by the Germans, Austro-Hungarians and Bulgarians, Serbia had been crushed. Of the 34,000 square miles in Serbia less than 4,000 remained in possession of the Serbs and Anglo-French troops.

Nelson G. Rupp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Rupp, former Marion residents, was the unanimous choice of sports editors and other authorities on football for halfback on the all-Ohio team for 1915. He had played with Denison university.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Long at their home near Marion.

E. O. Morris, 41, died at his home in Waldo.

Officers were elected at the annual Sunday school board meeting of Wesley M. E. church with W. C. Selanders heading the list as superintendent.

Carl A. Enz, 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Enz of Galt Rock township, joined other farm representatives on the Buckeye Boys' corn party special train which left for a trip to Philadelphia, Washington and New York. Enz was awarded the trip as the county's champion corn grower.

Behind The News In

Washington and Wall Street

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29—J. P. Morgan whistled a new note when he landed from Europe recently. He said no big fortune would remain 30 years under existing taxation. He saw the end of philanthropies, such as endowed universities, Carnegie libraries, Mellon art collections, etc.

Taxation authorities have been studying the point since he made his statement and have concluded he was no more than 50 per cent right. That is, no large American fortune can last for two generations under existing inheritance taxes. No large fortune can be built up under existing income taxes.

But the results will require 50 to 70 years instead of 30 to effectuate. And no one believes existing taxes will last that long.

Rockefellers

Take the Rockefeller fortune—if you can get even a line on it. John D. Sr. is 96. The government will not collect much from his estate. He gave his fortune to his son, John D. Jr. The son has created innumerable trust funds, some of which are taxable, but most of which are not. Junior will die within the next 30 to 50 years—he is 61. But philanthropy, not the government, will receive most of his father's fortune.

The senior Rockefeller evaded the new era by giving his fortune to his son before the present gift taxes went into effect. It could not be done now.

If the elder Rockefeller's fortune could be listed as $100,000,000 (for the purpose of analysis), the government tax at his death would be $67,000,000. That would leave Junior $33,000,000. The tax at his death would amount to $20,000,000. That would leave $13,000,000 from the original $100,000,000.

Fords

This will not happen to Rockefeller. Nor will it happen to Ford. You can ascertain from semi-official sources that Henry has passed the bulk of his estate to Edsel. He paid rather heavy gift taxes on it because he did not get in under the wire as did Rockefeller. Don't tell anyone, but Edsel now pays a larger income tax than Henry.

The man it has happened to is Will Rogers, the beloved national humorist. Those who know say Rogers' income prior to his death was about $25,000 a week. He was compelled to lay aside $15,000 of it to pay his federal and California state taxes.

In the contrast, you have the hidden answer to the taxation problem. Rogers earned his money. His employers paid him what they thought he was worth. His income was right out on the barrel head, where the government could snatch it.

Most fortune holders buy farms which they can operate at a tax deduction loss, or buy tax-exempt securities which permit them to get away from the mouth of the government's tax collection gun.

Results

The certain mathematical answer to these examples is that wealth-sharing is a good parlor game, but it does not add up to substance in the kitchen. Mr. Morgan's surmise is correct theoretically but not actually.

Existing fortunes above five or ten million dollars cannot possibly go through the tax wringer twice. But they probably will not have to. For one thing, the outstanding examples have taken steps to guarantee other results. For another, the existing system of taxation will unquestionably not last for the 50 to 70 years required to make it punitive.

The really onerous burden of taxation will continue to fall for some years on professionally successful men, the best doctors, lawyers, actors, where the real bulk of the money is earned. They are the unheralded boys who will carry the load. Congress has soaked the rich, but hit the professional men.

Smokeout

Efforts to [illegible] out Gov. Landon have [illegible] to an undercover campaign. Word is being passed by his adversaries throughout the east that he had not sufficiently made known his position on pending national problems. He has no program they say. Republican party leaders and their writers are centers of the din to make him speak.

Also new deal strategists have been coyly joining the chorus lately. They would like to have the Kansas governor drawn out into the debating arena.

Word comes unofficially from his pals in Washington that the chiming is useless. He will not take his wraps off until spring, they say. Then the supreme court decisions will be down, the course of the new deal charted definitely.

The tactical weakness of his critical adversaries seems to be that they have taken too much of a record.

Deflation

President Roosevelt's right-hand boy was asked recently about Gov. Eccles' boom statement. In reply, he generated pseudo excitement, waving his hands and saying, "Go out and buy everything boys, go out and buy everything. The clear implications was that Gov. Eccles' personal stock with the high command is being quoted at about 2 below zero.

By JAMES McMULLIN

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—John L. Lewis' resignation from the executive council of the American Federation of Labor marks the overt beginning of a split in organized labor which is likely to alter its whole future history.

Lewis is a keen opportunist as well as an able organizer and spellbinder. Sources in a position to know say he would never have made such a dramatic point of his cleavage from the old-line leadership if he hadn't had reason to feel confident of stronger support inside the Federation than has yet become apparent. His plea for industrial as against craft unions was voted down at the Atlantic City convention—but the jury was packed to some extent. Informed New Yorkers say that Lewis is definitely the white hope of the younger element in the federation who are fed up with "old fogeyism" and crave action—including many members of unions theoretically opposed to his policies. He may not—as he says—be aiming at the presidency of the A. F. of L; he certainly does intend to run the show in every realistic sense. But the old guard is well entrenched and he won't have any pushover.

Many conservatives are gleeful at the prospect of a rift that is bound to weaken the federation—at least for a while. But the best-posted right wingers aren't so sure there's any cause for rejoicing. The division may turn out to be more of a help to the communists in their infiltration campaign — they are quick at seizing such openings—than it will be to open shop employers.

Alibi

Wall Street brokers think Federal Reserve Chairman Marriner Eccles is a great man. He certainly gave their business a boost with his bullish prophecies and his inference that the government wasn't going to butt in and spoil the stock market party.

But some disinterested cynics are mean enough to carp about his enthusiasm. They recall Andy Mellon's ill-timed assumption of the prophet's mantle and remark that the speculative flames are plenty hot already without benefit of official fanning. They do concede that Marriner has a much better chance than Andy had of looking like an oracle six months or a year later. They also note that Eccles has neatly staked a new deal claim for gratitude from those whose market activities bring profits—and comment that this should certainly put him in right at the White House.

From another angle Eccles would seem to be indulging in a buck-passing contest with Chairman Jim Landis of the securities exchange commission and President Charles R. Gay of the New York Stock Exchange. The two latter gentlemen made it clear several weeks ago that if the boom ends up in a bust it won't be the fault of their agencies, but that of the federal reserve system for failing to keep credit expansion under control. The federal reserve chief replies in effect that the banks can't be blamed if this happens because very little of the current speculation is being financed by banks. Everybody now appears to be covered by an advance alibi except those who may be so unfortunate as to get nipped if and when the market finally hits that much-predicted tobaggan.

Interest

A large number of bankers would like to see the federal reserve board jack up reserve requirements at once—even to the extent of cutting down the $3,000,000,000 in excess reserves to a measly $1,000,000,000. Not only would this provide a more conservative base for credit expansion and thus forestall the possibility of extravagant credit inflation—it would also relieve them of these mountainous excess reserves for which they can't find any possible use.

But the federal reserve board and other Washington officials have dreadfully suspicious natures. New York learns they harbor the unworthy thought which might not be so far off the mark at that—that bankers favor such a move because it would give them an excuse to hoist interest rates, which wouldn't jibe at all with new deal policy. This is one of the main reasons why reserve requirements will not be raised at present, though they may be later.

Another reason is that—even though it were carefully explained that $1,000,000,000 in excess reserves was ample to cover the needs of business expansion—the psychological effect would be very likely to dampen recovery sentiment. Anti-new dealers could be counted on to make the most of it.

Down

Administration critics are laughing up their sleeves at Secretary Hull's predicament. Financial sharps claim that the British outsmarted him as a veteran quarterback outsmarts a green defense.

When he tried to embargo oil shipments to Italy under the guise of furthering our neutrality policy he obviously expected the League of Nations to follow suit. But the British shrewdly arranged to have the league postpone action on this war material which is so vital to Mussolini.

Result: The British are still free to make a profit selling their own oil to Italy while our producers are shut out unless Mr. Hull reverses his stand. He must be prepared either to look foolish or get into some very heated arguments with American oil concerns. Also Italian wrath is transferred to some extent from England to ourselves. Ribald commentators call it "Hull-Downing Street diplomacy—accent on the Hull-down."

Math

New York learns that the new dealers are all primed with figures to prove that President Roosevelt isn't the big league squanderer the opposition makes him out to be.

Their story—scheduled to be sprung by a high administration spokesman in the near future—is in line with balance-the-budget philosophy and runs as follows.

It's true that the federal government debt has risen $8,500,000,000 since 1933. But $4,500,000,000 of this is covered by collateral on loans made by the RFC and other agencies (worth considerably more if the markets continue to climb) and $3,250,000,000 more is offset by the profit from dollar devaluation. That leaves a net increase in the deficit of a mere $750,000,000—and isn't that a paltry sum to pay for recovery?

Willett pushed him back into his chair. "All right," he said kindly. "I didn't know. But don't get excited. First thing you ought to do is lay off the kana. Then take your leave of absence, go home and see your family, and afterward come back to your Maria if you want her that bad. Hell, it's perfectly simple."

Speede shook his head slowly from side to side.

"I've thought of that. I've thought of a million things. But I can't go back. I'm afraid, afraid—"

Fox was bored stiff at the Polo Rail.

His eyes were burning with the kana as he caught Terry by the wrist.

"I'm afraid," he repeated jerkily. "I was at the capital just before I came here. I saw European women there, Terry, European and Americans too, high heels and slim waists, beautiful, laughing, and fresh.

"I know lots of girls like that back in the States. I was almost engaged to one once. A girl of what mother could call 'my class.' I love Maria, I tell you, but if I ever went back to the States, I'm afraid I'd never—come—back. I'd ditch Maria like the dirtiest swine who ever walked—Maria and my kid."

Terry released himself from the grasp of the other's fingers. Queer duck, Tommy Speede, this former fresh-cheeked, laughing kid with his college degree.

Caught with tropical kana and some naive ideas of love and duty. Staying here and signing his death warrant over a brown-skinned native. Well, some beat the game and some didn't.

Kiss and ride on! Speede couldn't. That came from being "soft." Speede was right—nobody had ever heard of Terry Willett being soft. Look what it got you—look at Tommy Speede.

"Keep your head screwed on, Tommy," he ordered gruffly. "Maria doesn't expect anything. For God's sake, go back to the States before you're shipped back. And stay there."

Young Tommy Speede looked at him with eyes that seemed unable to focus.

"I can't," he said doggedly. "I can't and I won't and be damned to you all."

On the way to his hotel later Willett paused and viewed the big warehouses rising from the water's edge while that omnipresent smell of stagnant sea foam polluted the warm breeze that blew up from the harbor.

But his thoughts were not of coffee as he surveyed the warehouses and the lights of the freighters riding at anchor. He was thinking of young Tommy Speede and the grin he had brought into a construction camp on the Pontecilles-Juarez road. His face twisted wryly.

"Dead in six months," he muttered. "And because of a woman."

* * *

George Fox of the American Foreign Service held a position that, on the surface, could have been filled by any one of a hundred young men whom the state department sends out every year to start that hallowed and diplomatic calling, "a diplomatic career."

He wore his clothes with easy athletic distinction, knew most of the right answers, and possessed, when he chose, a most excellent poker face.

But he was bored stiff at the Legation Club Polo ball even before the affair began.

Fox grunted. Enough material there for fifty ten-drinking harmless young spirits of attaches.

Captain Dent, the military attache of the American embassy, dropped a hand on his shoulder.

"If you're looking for the same person I am, George," he said with a grin, "—don't bother. She has completely disappeared. And from what I hear of her she may bob up anywhere from Mexico City to Sao Paulo. Her mother tells me she started for Tuxedo park one time and then turned up on ball from Hinsdale, Ill., where she'd outraged some landing statute by setting her plane down on a golf course."

But tomorrow Fox finds the girl.

The Marry-Go-Round

BY HELEN ROWLAND

WOMAN'S WINNING CARD

Every woman has at least three voices; one for her husband, one for company and one for her telephone.

The last is usually the sweetest and most carefully cultivated. For there are few women who do not know the value of a dulcet, seductive telephone-voice.

You may forget the color of a woman's eyes or even the sparkle of her wit; but you can never forget her voice over the telephone, whether it sounds like a penny whistle, a chorus of bagpipes or a chorus of angels. And nothing gets on a man's nerves and rubs his temper the wrong way so quickly as a woman with a strident voice.

* * *

Funny, how a girl will spend so much time and money on facials, permanent waves and reducing treatments, when half the effort spent on cultivating the sweet notes in her voice would net her twice the results.

One of the greatest assets that a hotel or a business office can have is a telephone operator with a winsome and mellifluous voice—the sort of voice that seems to come out over the wire and pat you caressingly on the back.

Many a clever young woman has managed to get herself a highly-paid job on the strength of her sweet and irresistible telephone-voice. And the hard-boiled business man, who gave her the job, knew that she would be worth the price to his firm, no matter if she had a face like a wild-cat and a figure like a bag of salt.

So many big sales have been made and so many big deals are put over via the telephone, that many a man has actually risen to success and affluence on the engaging and persuasive qualities of his private secretary's voice.

* * *

Some business men deliberately cultivate gruff, forbidding telephone-voices, as a means of self-protection against the telephone pests. But they never encourage this in their women employes.

And professional men, especially doctors and attorneys, often find a gentle, sympathetic telephone-voice a greater asset in their business than expensive office furniture. You never heard of a doctor barking at a patient—did you?

It takes time, patience and a great deal of self-control to be always amiable and gracious over the telephone, always musical and cordial. But, in the end, it pays—especially if you are a woman. For, whether it's a job or a husband she wants, a woman's voice is her winning card!

All the scented rouge in the drug-store never made a girl's lips kissable. If the voice that proceeded from them sounded like a saxophone.

If a crooner can make thousands of dollars a week, just for charming your ears, every girl must realize that the greatest charm or the greatest handicap in the world is the human voice!

MAN WHO FIRED LAST CIVIL WAR SHOT DIES

Union Army Sergeant Stricken in Columbus Hospital After Long Illness.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29—David N. Oxyor, 94, who as a sergeant in the Union army claimed to have fired the last shot in the organized fighting of the Civil war, died yesterday at a hospital here after a protracted illness.

As a member of the Ninth Ohio volunteer cavalry, Oxyor and a companion were sent out to attract the attention of Gen. Joe Wheeler's Confederate cavalry near Durham Station, N. C., on the morning of April 17, 1865, while the federal troops maneuvered to more advantageous position.

In an exchange of shots, a flag truce was hoisted signifying the end of the war. Oxyor's last shot wounded a Confederate soldier.

Working as an engineer in Birmingham a year later Oxyor met the southerner he had wounded and they became friends.

Oxyor retired from mining and electrical engineering several years ago.

Studies of aviation students in England have indicated that overweight young men generally have more physical endurance, greater resistance to disease and a better defense against mental disorders than those under weight.

State Health Director Asks Citizens To Observe Tuberculosis Sunday.

Special to The Star

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 29—Dr. Walter H. Hartung, state director of health, today, in an official statement called upon the people of Ohio to observe Sunday, Dec. 1, as tuberculosis Sunday. The appeal was made in connection with the sale of Christmas Seals, which started Thanksgiving day and continues until Christmas. Declaring that as state director of health, "I can well realize the importance of the continued effort to conquer tuberculosis," Dr. Hartung urged every citizen of the state to indicate his interest in tuberculosis prevention work by purchasing and using Christmas seals this year. Dr. Hartung's statement follows:

To the citizens of the state of Ohio:

"The importance of the continued fight to prevent the spread of tuberculosis in the state of Ohio and the nation is again brought to our attention by the launching of the annual Christmas health seal sale by the Ohio Public Health association and its affiliated local committees Thanksgiving day.

"As director of health of the state of Ohio I can well realize the importance of the continued effort to conquer the disease. Even though great progress has been made in the reduction of the number of deaths from tuberculosis there is much to be done.

"I have no hesitancy in urging that you observe tuberculosis Sunday, Dec. 1, and indicate your interest in this prevention work by purchasing and using Christmas health seals this year."

ORANGES CAUSE SUIT

Luscious oranges which grew beside the Wesleyan church in Kleinfontein, South Africa, have been the innocent cause of lengthy litigation by the minister against his congregation. The stake at issue was: Who had the right to eat the oranges that grow in the church yard—the minister or the church management committee? The minister has won the first clash, in court, but the management committee are now tackling the problem from another angle. They are going to call an extraordinary general meeting of the congregation and take a vote to decide whether the minister can eat all the oranges growing in the church yard.

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Tetanus.

Tetanus, or "lockjaw," is a disease which has been known for centuries. It first was described by Hippocrates, an ancient Greek philosopher and physician. In olden times little relief or hope could be offered its victims. Modern science studied the disease and now offers a means of protection against this formerly fatal infection.

Tetanus is an acute infectious disease caused by a germ, called the "bacillus tetanus." This organism is found in the soil, in dirt, on rusty or soiled objects. It gains access to the body through small cuts and abrasions which seem minor injuries, yet sufficient to permit its entrance. Once in the system the disease is rapidly spread through the poisons liberated by the tetanus germ.

The poisons, or toxins, enter the general circulation and reach the central nervous system. As a result of changes here, there result frequent convulsions which are quite characteristic of lockjaw. At first the unsuspecting victim complains of restlessness and extreme irritability. He may suffer chills and headaches, but the most typical signs are stiffness of the neck and difficulty in chewing and swallowing. Severe convulsions occur in the last stages of the disease.

Fortunately, this serious ailment can be prevented. This is accomplished by proper and prompt attention to the sterilization of all wounds and removal from them of all dirt and infectious material. In addition to care of the wound, it is important that "tetanus antitoxin" be administered. This should be given to the victims of injuries which are associated with dirt and possibly contaminated material.

This injection should never be delayed, because postponement is dangerous. Even if there is a question of doubt as to the probability of infection, I would advise that the anti-toxin be given as a precaution. We must not forget that the prevention of this disease is far easier than its cure.

Bear in mind that injuries received on the street surface, or burns from firecracker explosions, as well as gunshot wounds, should be treated immediately by the injection of tetanus antitoxin. Serious infection and often fatal complications may occur when the use of this preventive measure is delayed or neglected.

I am glad to say that the administration of tetanus antitoxin is a routine procedure in large hospitals. All accident cases and emergency first-aid cases are immediately injected against tetanus. No informed person will deny that enforcement of this rule has reduced the number of cases of lockjaw and materially lessened the danger of serious complications.

Answers to Health Queries

A Daily Reader. Q.—What are the symptoms of the different stages of tuberculosis? 2. What would hemorrhages of the lungs indicate?

A.—Such symptoms are naturally varied. Talk with your doctor. He will be glad to advise you along these lines. 2. An X-ray will determine just what condition exists and the patient can be treated accordingly.

H.W.I. Q.—What do you advise for the "fidgets"? The patient is an elderly lady who is taking care of a sister who is an invalid. The attacks come mostly at night, centering in the nerves between the knees and ankles and interfering with the patient's sleep and rest.

A.—Try to overcome the nervousness first of all. Every effort should be made to keep up the general health and resistance. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

C.S.C. Q.—What would cause an intense itching of the leg between knee and ankle. The condition seems worse at night and in cold weather. Is this pruritis and how should it be treated?

A.—Try to find the underlying cause of the trouble first of all. Itching such as you describe may be due to a number of sources. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

The Stars Say--

For Saturday, Nov. 30

A VERY lively and eventful day is forecast, according to the planetary auguries. There is sign of a sudden commotion or disruptive force, which had best be handled with vigilance and calm judgment as it bodes little satisfaction. Disturbing influences, strangers and hurriedly-presented propositions would not prove desirable adventures.

Those whose birthday it is are under the forecast of a year of disturbance and excitement, with much commotion and unsettlement. But these, with strange persons and propositions, should be very sagaciously handled, as they promise little benefit.

A child born on this day may be talented and gifted, but may be restless, erratic and adventurous to a detrimental degree.

Thanksgiving Services Draw Many To Churches

John W. Heistand Preaches Union Sermon; Other Congregations Worship.

The Thanksgiving morning services drew hundreds of Marion citizens and children, and the union Presbyterian church service for Marion County Ministerial association sponsored a community service, approximately 250 persons heard a Thanksgiving sermon by Rev. John W. Heistand, pastor of the First Reformed church.

A Thanksgiving mass was sung at St. Mary Catholic church. At St. Paul's Episcopal church was a choral service and holy communion. Rev. Emanuel Lutheran church, pastor of the Emanuel Lutheran church, Rev. J. W. Schillinger, pastor, conducted a festival service, and at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, there was a service of worship.

The offering of $13.36 contributed at the union service was to be given today to the Marion County chapter of Red Cross.

Thanksgiving day is the only holiday created by one of the modern, western Christian nations on the basis of its own national experiences but which, nevertheless, has a distinctly religious character," Rev. Heistand said. "This is a significant fact," he continued, "for it is this religious element which sets Thanksgiving apart from the other national holidays."

Rev. Heistand's sermon, in part, follows:

"Thanksgiving day alone lends itself and is vitally associated with what might be called the eternal basis of all true religion—namely, a sense of gratitude to God for His mercies and blessings.

"As we enumerate our blessings today there is a tendency to become pharisaical, thanking God that we are better off than other people. We are prone to think that when we are the recipients of material blessings we stand in favor with God and when these material gifts are withheld we stand in disfavor.

"The prophet Habakkuk was once meditating about the whole problem of Thanksgiving and the conclusion he reached must be the conclusion of every true religionist. His sense of gratitude for God's protecting strength was so deep, even though that strength was barely evident in material blessings, that he would still rejoice and give thanks.

"Certainly we can be grateful for whatever material good has accrued to us, but apart from these blessings there is still much for which we can be grateful. We can still rejoice in the eternal values of life.

"Let us thank God for God. Let us thank Him for Jesus Christ. Let us thank Him for the Bible, the Book of Life. Let us thank Him for the love of family and fellowman. These and other spiritual blessings should be sufficient to impel us to give thanks."

Ministers Assist

Rev. Howard L. Olewiler, pastor of the First church, presided and gave the invocation. The scripture lesson was read by Rev. Oscar V. Latta of the Oakland Evangelical church and the Thanksgiving prayer was offered by Rev. Stanley W. Wiant of Wesley M. E. church. Rev. S. L. Cover of the First Church of the Brethren read the President's proclamation. Rev. Heistand pronounced the benediction.

A feature of the morning Thanksgiving service at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, was the period of time given over to testimonies of blessings received by members of the congregation. The President's Thanksgiving proclamation was read during the service, which consisted of hymns, a solo, scriptural readings and readings from the Christian Science textbook. The subject was "Thanksgiving" and the text was: "Off unto God thanksgiving; and pay thy vows unto the most High."

Among the citations read was the following from the Bible, "Serve the Lord with gladness: come before His presence with singing," and a correlation citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christian Science does honor God as no other theory honors Him, and it does this in the way of His appointing, by doing many wonderful works through the divine name and nature." The service was concluded with a benediction from the Bible.

Instantly You Catch Cold

Do These 2 Things

For Fast Relief, Remember These Pictures

Two Bayer Aspirin tablets with a full glass of water.

Three Bayer Aspirin tablets, crushed and dissolved in ½ glass of water as a gargle. Gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back to permit this medicated gargle to reach the irritated membranes of the throat.

Your doctor will approve this treatment as perhaps the quickest, surest way known to fight cold and sore throat.

The Bayer Aspirin taken internally will combat a cold almost instantly, and ease the usual pains that accompany one. The gargle will ease sore throat in a few minutes. For it acts like a local anesthetic in relieving pain and rawness.

When you buy, though, see that you get real BAYER ASPIRIN tablets. For they dissolve almost instantly in the stomach and thus start working almost instantly. And they dissolve completely enough to use as a gargle. Watch out for this.

WHY BAYER ASPIRIN WORKS SO FAST

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water.

By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH

A Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—Genuine "BAYER" Aspirin tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Here Is Grand News For Victims Of Indigestion

Well known citizen had suffered from disordered stomach for years. Bowels constipated, sluggish liver caused dizzy spells. Says VENDOL gave marvelous relief.

MRS. DARL MILLER

"For a long time my stomach had been causing trouble and had been getting worse and worse until lately I lost practically all desire to eat. What little nourishment I took brought on painful attacks of indigestion and the acid risings were so bad that my mouth often felt like it had been burned," said Mrs. Darl Miller, who lives at Lansing, Ohio.

"A disorder of my liver caused frequent bilious spells and made me feel listless and miserable. My nerves became so jumpy that I was unable to sleep only a few hours some nights. Naturally this loss of sleep was harmful and my entire system became run down. And, to make matters worse it was almost impossible to pass off the accumulations of poisonous matter in my system due to a constipated condition of my bowels.

"A friend of mine started me on the road to health when he suggested that I try Vendol. I have now taken Vendol less than 30 days, and already I am enjoying the best health I have had in years. I eat three meals every day and enjoy every one of them for I no longer suffer with my old stomach complaints. My liver is normal, my bowels are as regular as a clock and I feel full of pep and energy. My sleep is no longer disturbed and I sleep from the moment I get into bed until time to get up. I feel so much stronger and better in every way that it is a real pleasure to tell others about Vendol."

All good druggists have Vendol on sale but any person desiring to make sure that they receive the genuine Vendol at once by ordering a [illegible] from the Vendol Laboratories, [illegible] Ohio. Vendol is sold in Marion by [illegible]

TOO MANY EDUCATED FOLKS, FRANCE SAYS

Ministry Head Reports Supply of Graduates Far Exceeds Jobs.

By United Press

PARIS.—Two many people are being educated in France for too few jobs.

That is no casual theory, but the opinion of Francisque Vial, who heads the department of secondary instruction at the ministry of national education.

"People are complaining now that ther are too many college graduates," Vial says. "Two years from now there are going to be one-third as many more. And what are we doing for youth?"

He provided the answer himself. "Nothing."

The oversupply of college graduates is seen in every profession. One example that reached the ears of the whole world is that of the medical profession, where overcrowding caused demonstrations against foreign practitioners and the passing of laws restricting their activity in France. But in no profession is it felt more gravely than in teaching.

Not many years ago any graduate with a degree entitling him or her to teach was assured of a place almost immediately. Today only a few of those who leave state normal schools with diplomas which are equivalent to teaching certificates are able to find places.

Thus, for instance 93 men and 143 women with degrees entitling them to teach philosophy got seven places—three for the men, four for the women. In history there were 129 male candidates, 241 female; placed, nine men, three women. Modern languages, 181 men, 259 women; placed, 14 men, 14 women. Dead languages, 75 men, 98 women; placed, 70 men, 21 women. Sciences, 349 men, 255 women, placed, nine men, no women.

MOLEY REMAINS A "NEW DEALER"

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 29—Raymond Moley remains a "new dealer" even though, as editor of Today magazine, he sometimes criticized administration policies.

It is improbable, however, that Moley will be as closely identified with the coming campaign as he was with the last. As the No. 1 man of the original "brain trust," he was with Mr. Roosevelt constantly throughout the '32 campaign.

Then came the London economic conference, Moley's disagreement with Secretary Hull and his subsequent resignation as assistant secretary of state.

Back Up the Fat Wagon

The new way is to make fat formation reverse its process, to use the same safe means employed by nature to MAKE fat as the means of getting rid of it. Korjena alone does this, the greatest, safest, most successful method of fat elimination ever conceived. Korjena first puts the brakes on fat accumulation. Fat stops. Then it gently and harmlessly tears away accumulated fat. Pounds, disappear, often 7-10 in a few days. Double action, double results—in double quick time. Weigh yourself today. Then start with Korjena. Follow simple directions and weigh yourself again. Grin with delight when you see pounds gone, meanwhile eating what you like, even sweets in some cases. Simply reverse the fat formation process with Korjena. Absolutely harmless.

INDEED YOU DO- WHAT WITH ALL BIM'S SPLENDID SUCCESS IN THE STOCK MARKET- AND I DARE SAY YOUR DEAR MOTHER IS FOLLOWING HIS TIPS AS WELL?
MAMA? OH, DEAR NO!

STOCKS SLUMP 1 TO 3 POINTS

Selling Wave Linked to New Crisis in European Diplomatic Situation

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, Nov 29—After a fairly resistant two hours a heavy selling wave hit the stock market today and leading issues dropped 1 to around 3 points.
Grave apprehension over the foreign situation was said to have induced liquidation of many of the recent favorites. The ticker tape fell behind floor transactions at the worst of the downturn. The rails and coppers were the best in early dealings.
Grains and cotton were listless. In the bond department low priced carrier liens were in demand but there was considerable irregularity in other divisions. Foreign exchanges were quiet, with the French franc about unchanged
Western Union lost 3 points and other conspicuous losers included U S Steel, Bethlehem Chrysler Du Pont, Westinghouse, Loew's Consolidated Gas Montgomery Ward, Great Northern and Santa Fe.
Renewed tension between Italy and Great Britain over the oil embargo controversy served to cause uneasiness in bullish quarters. It was feared that if the two nations should go to war world economic conditions would be dealt a severe blow
The victory of Premier Laval in the French chamber of deputies was in line with market expectations. Most foreign observers were of the opinion however that France's gold standard problem is still far from solution and that franc devaluation soon or late is virtually certain
Early friendliness for various rail stocks reflected both increased freight car loadings and predictions that net operating income for the leading roads in the fourth quarter will be the best for any similar period since 1930
Activity of several copper issues was attributed partly to expanding use of the metal and to hopes that a few of the producers will enjoy highly satisfactory earnings during the remainder of this year and the early part of next.
Bankers estimated the government's December financing details of which will be announced over the week end will involve some $1 000 000 000 About half is to meet a Dec 15 maturity and the other half it was believed will be needed to build up the treasury's working cash supply
